Message from the MEMBER BOARD OF GOVERNORS

PROFESSOR WILLIAM P KITTREDGE, PHD

Your business environment and your customers' expectations are changing at an ever accelerating pace. Globalized markets present a dual challenge. Your company's competitors can be anywhere in the world challenging not only your company's products and services but also vying for the best new talent and recruiting your company's best employees.

How you respond to these challenges determines your company's short-term success and long-term viability. Today's business environment presents challenges that require creative, cost-effective solutions – Knowledge Now solutions.

Knowledge Now's international team of seasoned content developers, presenters, technical experts, and program managers provides up-to-date content tailored to your situation. Knowledge Now customers also enjoy a wide range of delivery options. Knowledge Now stands ready to create custom programs and workshops, with a global perspective, for your company.

During my own career in senior private sector, government, and academic positions, I've seen the accelerating pace of change leave individuals, companies, universities, and governments behind simply because they could not access cost-effective resources to address the challenges they face. I joined Knowledge Now specifically because Knowledge Now's approach responds to those challenges dynamically and flexibly, delivering customized content cost-effectively.

In my own recent work, I delivered in person workshops at the Medinah Institute for Leadership and Entrepreneurship (Medinah KSA) and the Asian Institute of Technology (Bangkok Thailand) for senior executives from many nations including Australia, Bhutan, Cambodia, Egypt, India, KSA, Nepal, Qatar, Thailand, Turkey, UAE, and USA.

The courses and workshops varied from 1 -10 days and addressed a wide range of topics including recruiting and retaining Millennial generation employees, public-private partnerships, social enterprise planning, telecom management, computer systems security, and risk management in globalized banking. The development and delivery of appropriate content, program management, and provision of appropriate technical services for such a broad range of topics across widely separated locations is only possible when a diverse group of seasoned professionals representing many disciplines and specializations works in a coordinated fashion to produce excellent outcomes – that team is Knowledge Now.

Many companies cannot afford the disruption associated with prolonged absences by senior people and they must keep their team's skills sharp through continuing professional education – Knowledge Now provides a complete, cost-effective solutions for them.

I am delighted to be part of this vibrant team. I hope that you will contact us soon to discuss your requirements. I am confident that you, and your company, will find Knowledge Now work products are uniformly excellent, as so many have already done.

Message from the MEMBER BOARD OF GOVERNORS

PROFESSOR TED MARRA, PHD

Board Member, Knowledge Now

I have been fortunate to have accumulated 42 years of global business experience – consulting, strategic facilitating, organisational change and developing executives through unique learning programmes. During that time I have lived or worked in some 38 countries and assisted more than 160 organisations in virtually every sector, industry; product, service or support group.

My personal mission has been to inspire leaders of today and those of tomorrow – helping them to gain deep insights, broad and relevant understandings and to give them a compelling sense to act as catalysts for change in their organisations – their industries or sectors especially, but not exclusively, as it relates to matters of strategic importance.

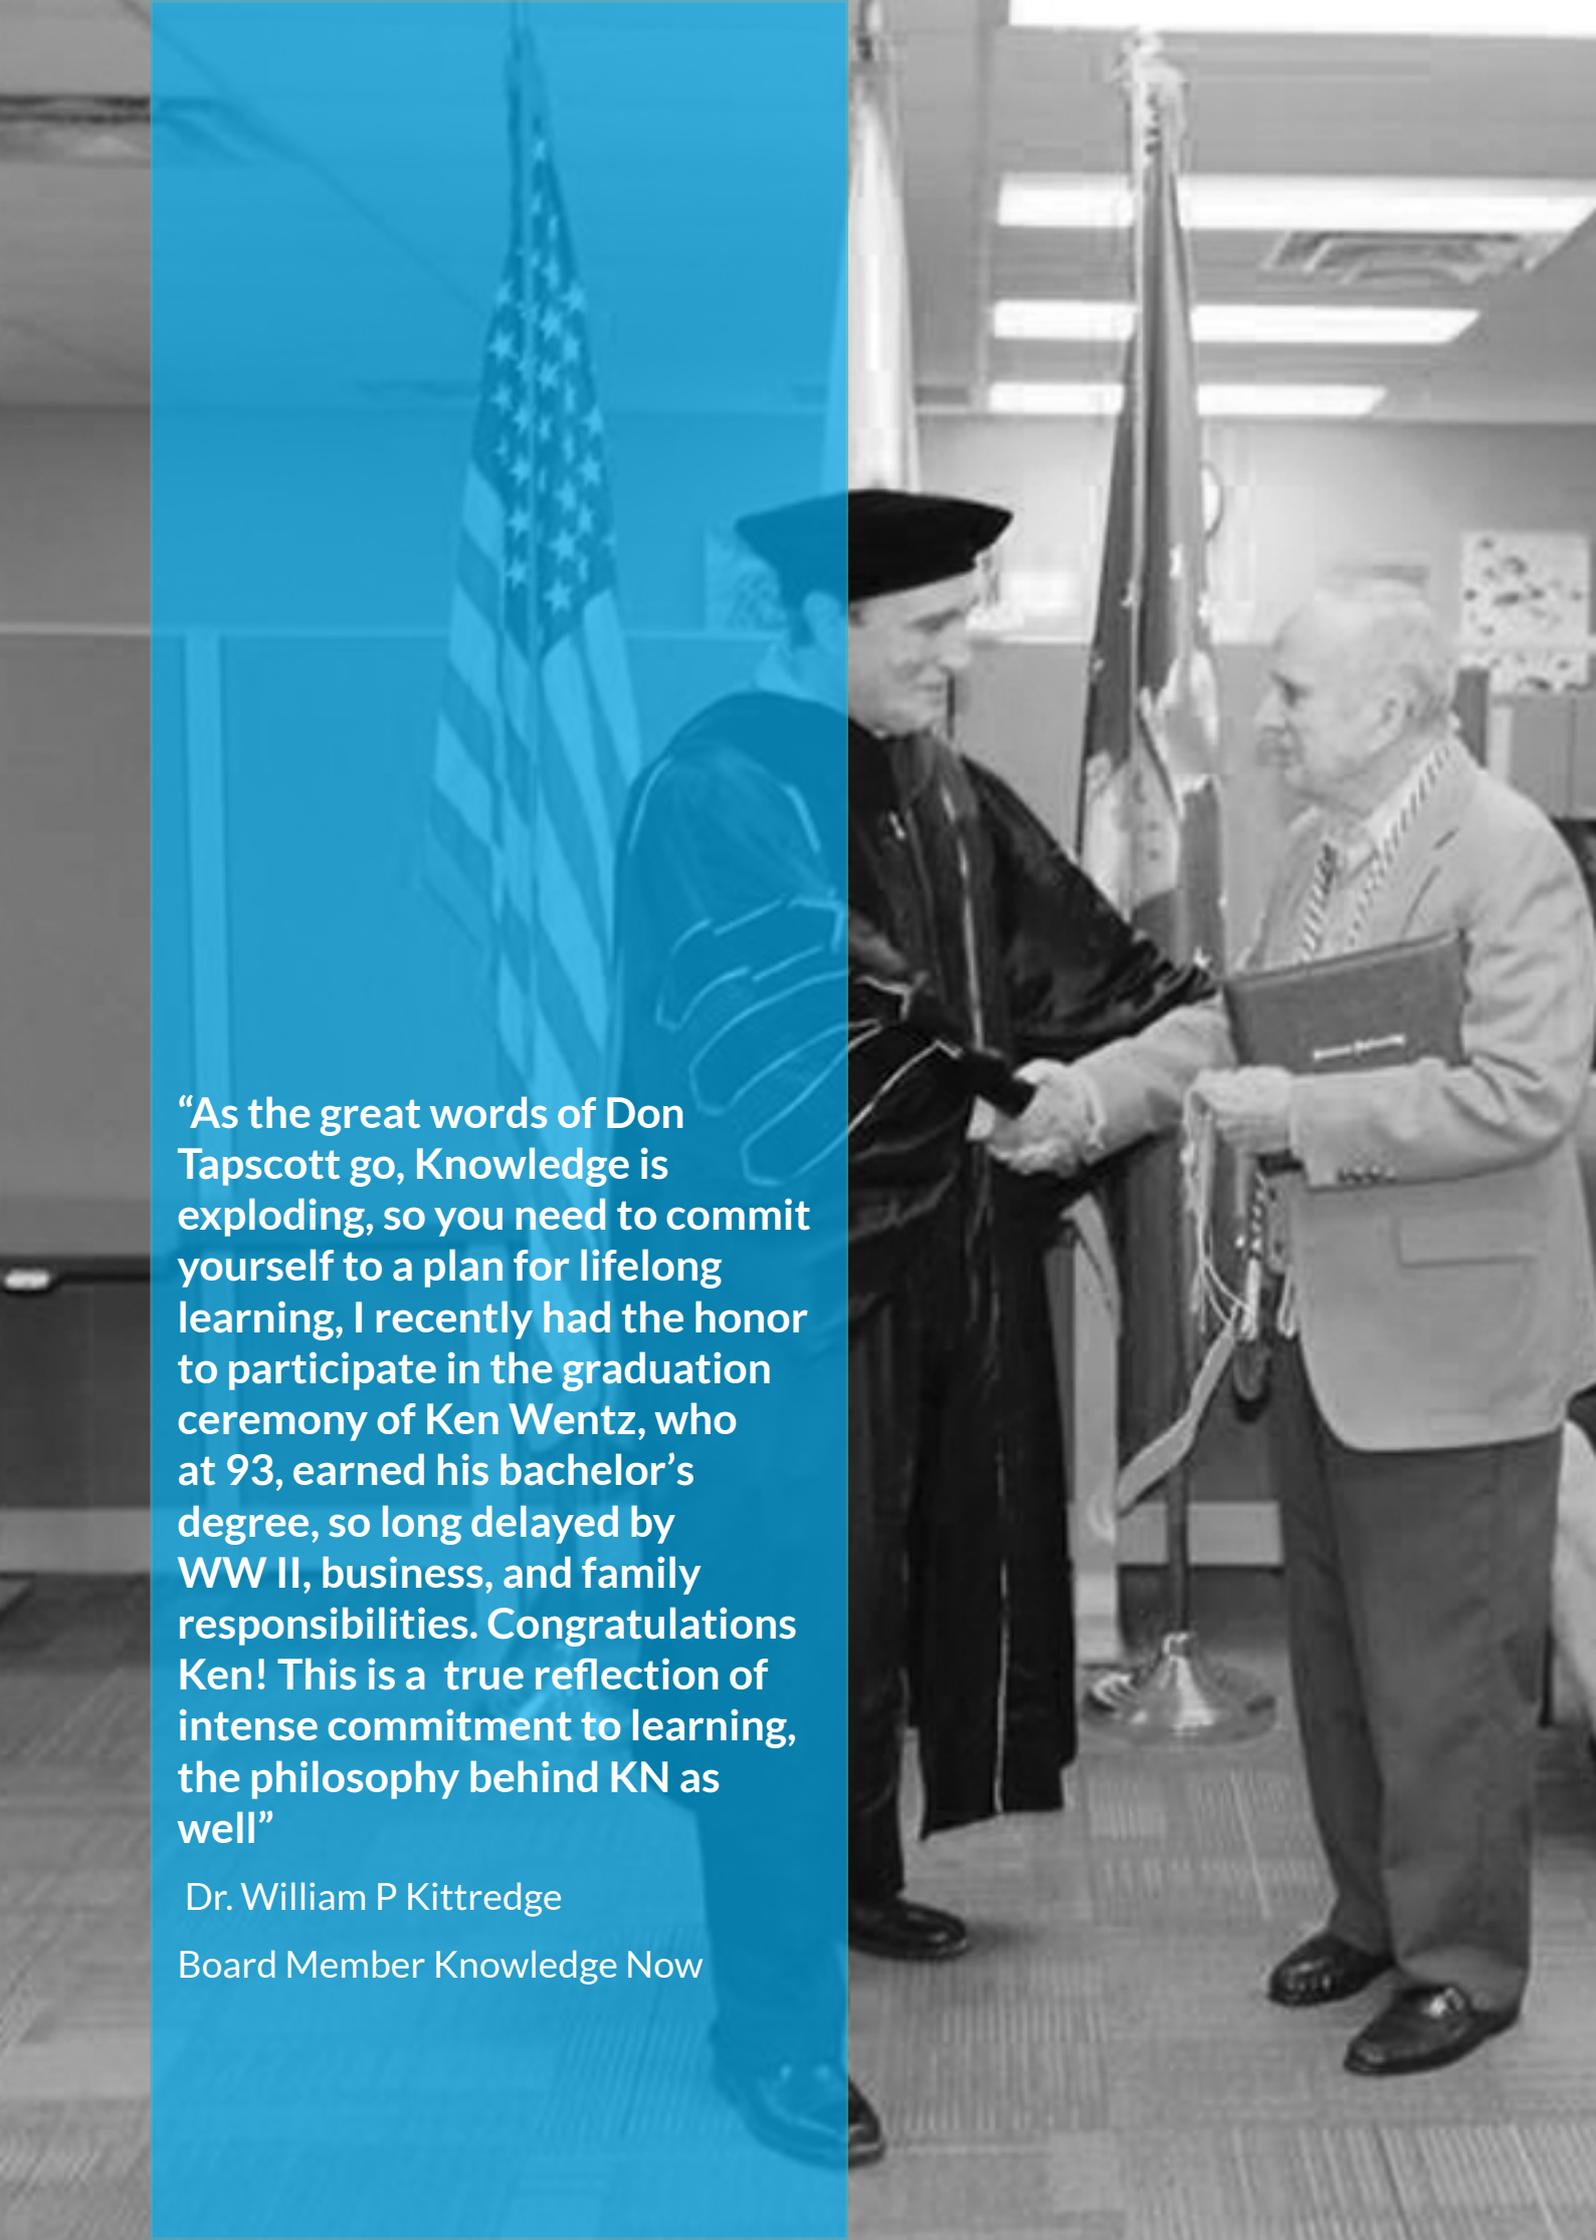

For some time now you have believed in the importance of learning and development in your organisation – building within your leaders of today and tomorrow the right combination of capabilities – the competencies to help maintain your organisation’s course even in turbulent times as well as better ensuring its success in the future however you choose to define it in your business context.

Yet you have many questions. Are we doing the right thing – really building the capabilities, the competencies that are going to be needed for the challenges ahead? Just what return have you really received on your investment? Have you really ensured that your executive development is aligned with the business needs that exist? Has it helped you produce better results – to be more competitive or successful? Have you spent too much time focusing on an effective executive development process and lost sight of the business outcomes you really need?

For me, my agreement to become a member of the board of Knowledge Now was like a breath of fresh air – a unique opportunity to join with a rare and, in my mind, incomparable team of visionary, intuitive individuals who are incredibly passionate about bringing their collaborative and creative genius to help build, in the best possible way, the capabilities – the competencies that will be essential for you – the leadership team of today and tomorrow – ensuring they will be able to build and maintain an enduring organisation – one that stands the test of time, change and turbulence; continuously maintains excellence in all it does; consistently produces benchmark results including a deep concern for societal outcomes; and all the while, creating and delivering exceptional value for all its key stakeholders.

I am proud to say that I represent Knowledge Now and I am 100% convinced that you will now have ‘someone to believe in’ when it comes to making your choice of a world-class provider of learning.

“As the great words of Don Tapscott go, Knowledge is exploding, so you need to commit yourself to a plan for lifelong learning, I recently had the honor to participate in the graduation ceremony of Ken Wentz, who at 93, earned his bachelor’s degree, so long delayed by WW II, business, and family responsibilities. Congratulations Ken! This is a true reflection of intense commitment to learning, the philosophy behind KN as well”
